

Happy 6 months, my love !

I won't pretend this journey has been easy or without its heavy days. Distance is hard, and sometimes fears and misunderstandings get in the way. But through every silence, every challenge, my heart has never wavered about one simple Truth: I choose you loving you has made me open up parts of my heart I used to keep locked. It's scary to be this vulnerable, but you make every risk, every mile, and every ounce of effort worth it. I don't just love you when things are light and smooth. I love you in the messy and scary moments, in the quiet ones, and through every storm.

Thank you for these six months together.
I believe in what we have, I believe in our future, and I'm right here.

I love you, silly !! ♥

Ps: Safira helped in writing this while she sleep in my lap 🐾